Canadian Food and Beverage Related Promotions:

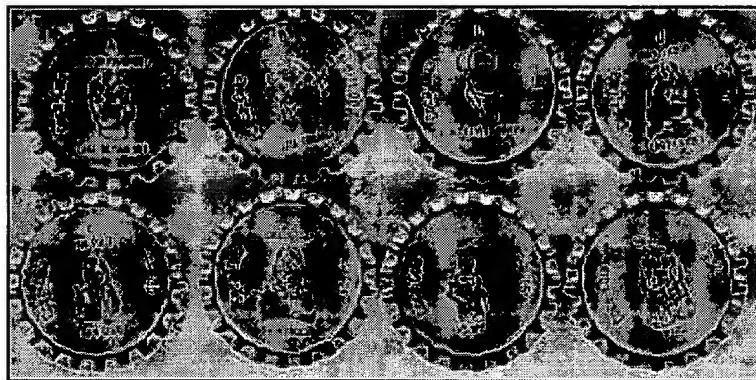

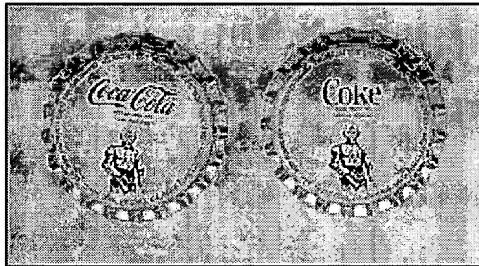

Coca Cola Promotions:

Coca Cola (or simply "Coke") was very active in Canada in terms of Star Wars related promotions between 1977 and 1985. Among the very first for the Star Wars franchise was the "Match Star Wars Pairs" promotion which took place in the summer of 1978. Players would peel the Coke bottle cap liners from beneath the caps of specially marked Coca Cola bottles to try and match different "pairs" in order to win a cash prize. The specially marked bottle caps were white caps with a black etching of C-3PO with either the "Coca Cola" or "Coke" logos printed on them.

The game was certainly not for high rollers, as the dollar rewards were quite low. For example:

- Match Luke Skywalker with Leia Organa and win $1.00
- Match Ben (Obi-Wan) Kenobi with Darth Vader and win 50 cents
- Match Han Solo with Chewbacca and win 25 cents
- Match C-3PO with R2-D2 and win 15 cents

The bottle caps and all eight bottle cap liners are show below:

There were also several paper items that were used to promote the contest. Shown below is a paper hanger that hung around the necks of three Coke bottles on one side of the 6-pack carry cases. It showed the pairs to match in the game, as well as offering a Star Wars poster (Hildebrandt art) by mail-order for $1.00. The reverse of the hanger stated the rules of the game.

Also used as part of the promotion was a larger sign that showed the pairs to match as part of the game. There was nothing shown on the reverse. The sign is shown below.

Fans of the Kenner line of Star Wars toys will notice that the illustration of the X-Wing used on the bottle hangers and promotional sign is that of the Kenner toy released earlier in the same year, 1978.
